

Angenette McAdoo

A proud longtime resident of Efland-Cheeks, Angenette McAdoo has dedicated much of her life to serving others and strengthening the community she calls home. Her advocacy focuses on ensuring residents are informed, heard, and engaged, while working collaboratively to address issues and identify opportunities that help Efland-Cheeks grow and thrive. Professionally, she has served the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill for 28 years and currently serves as Director of Employee and Management Relations. As Vice President of United Voices of Efland-Cheeks, Angenette continues her commitment to connecting residents, encouraging involvement, and helping create a stronger, more unified community.
